

A Message From Waller, Smith & Palmer Regarding COVID-19

A MESSAGE FROM WALLER, SMITH & PALMER

As the impact of COVID-19 (coronavirus) becomes clear, we at Waller, Smith & Palmer are taking active measures to protect the well-being of our employees, clients, guests, and the community at large, while also ensuring that we will continue to meet our clients' legal and business needs. We have developed a robust plan to minimize the risk of transmission related to firm business, including the use of technology to work in teams remotely as appropriate. We are monitoring the COVID-19 situation closely and will adhere to recommendations from the WHO, CDC, and other health organizations.

We want to assure you that regardless of what preventative measures are implemented to do our part, Waller, Smith & Palmer will remain fully available to you. Your calls and emails will be answered, and we will continue to represent our clients with the same responsiveness, expertise, and experience you expect and deserve.

Please do not hesitate to reach out to your team at Waller, Smith & Palmer if we can be of any assistance. As always, we are here for you.

Waller, Smith & Palmer P.C.
